Not only are there some great wineries and tasting rooms located near the train station, but Santa Barbara has fantastic places to eat and shop. A lot of these restaurants and shops are located on or just off State Street which is the main drag in Santa Barbara. So if feel the need to do something other than taste wine, just stroll up and down State Street and see what you find. A visit to Stearns Wharf should also be on the agenda to soak up the cool coastal air.

Please remember to be back at the train station by 4:15pm. The train leaves at 4:31pm and doesn't wait for stragglers!

Santa Barbara is not just tasting rooms. There are many fantastic places to eat all around the city. There are some great seafood restaurants out on Stearns Wharf, along Cabrillo Blvd and up on State Street. In the mood for Mexican food? It's a bit of a hike but some of the best taquerias you can find are out on Milpas Street near some of the tasting rooms. State Street is the main drag through the downtown area and is loaded with cuisine of everytype. Try the Lafond Bistro for some tasty treats and a great wine selection. Looking for something quick and simple? Try Mac's Fish & Chips for a true authentic English treat or The Habit for a tasty burger. After lunch you can continue wine tasting or go shopping.

Please remember the train leaves Santa Barbara at 4:31pm. We advise everyone to be at the train station by 4:15pm so you won't be late. The train may be late arriving into Santa Barbara but don't count on it. They won't wait for you so it's best to be there early.
